

*School and Family Peace Framework:
from violence and cruelty to healing and hope*

School and Family Peace Framework

Becoming Trauma-Informed is critical to building socially and emotionally safe communities. However it's difficult for a leader to bring an entire staff along this path because it's experiential and messy. The most effective way is through the School and Family Peace Framework. SFPF is about shifting the external-focused dialogue ("this stuff is happening to them/her/him"), which often leaves people feeling overwhelmed, divided, and depleted. Instead, with SFPF, each person identifies their own shadow message and finds heightened awareness of how that message plays out in their ability to lead and heal or to hide and divide. Make no mistake, this is hard work. And we invite you to join the movement.
